Haiku Help /

I am a great critic.
If you dance freely. I will judge you.
Have a fun time.

Writing haiku is hard
Especially when sidetracked.
Look! Is that a squirrel?

Life is my only art.
Sometimes I paint. sometimes I sit quiet and wait.

Speaking is my art
Organizing thoughts to set free.
The journey starts now.

Not sure I agree.
Merit, pretension, and titles.
Don't be. Just do.

Erik's Personal Movie Script /

The title of my movie is Kolor Kitties. I, Crayon-Man (played by Leonardo DiCaprio), face off against agent saber tooth, played by the super-skinny version of Al Pacino. Agent Saber Tooth runs a giant, foul company called 'Saber Tooth Kitten Killers, Inc.'. He has a factory filled with robot-workers who are forced to drink bad coffee and have four-hour powerpoint meetings. My sidekick is my wife, Tasha, played by Gwyneth Paltrow. She's the "Q" to my James Bond.

Before each mission, she sneaks in my supplies, arranges my travel plans (I prefer teleportation), and figures out how to trick Agent Saber Tooth into allowing all of the robot-workers to gather into a single room. Then I drop down from the ceiling, shout through my voice modulator and spray everyone with nano-paint that I shoot from color-canons. As the paint hits their robot skin, it downloads delicate bytes of intellectual breakthroughs that fills their brains until they eventually explode. Then kittens climb out of their heads, rally together and chase Agent Saber Tooth into a deep dark lair where he'll begin scheming his next attack. Another victory for crayon-man.

The kittens are now free to dream of new opportunities, drink decent coffee (with whole milk) and play with balls of aluminum foil (because, let's face it, kittens never play with the toys you actually buy for them).
